was released to the Pirates and ordered to report to Caliaban's club at Columbus. Ga., immediately. Shaw made a very favorable impression upon Wild Bill Donovan, but with Al Walters. Walter Alexander and Les Nunsmaker till in possession of all their faculties, he had no more chance than the proverbial Chinaman of winning a perminent herth with the Yankees. He is a hird and prolific batter against certain kinds of pitching, and if he can throw at all should make a valuable prespect in the Pirate camp.

J. N. Worcester was forced to play Pinchurst, N. C., March 16. The Pinchurst tennis championship trophy was won to-day by T. E. Canfield, of the Hartford Golf Club, who defeated P. A. Fitznatrick, of Gien Cave, in the final of the men's singles 6-3, 6-4, 6-4. Canfield forced the play at the net from the outset and kept Fitzpatrick on the defensive throughout the match, the result of which was a foregone conclusion after the playing of the first few games.

Willard and War

If any fighter has an alibi in time of war it will be Jess Willard. Standing n the average trench, his head would be three or four inches above the top, and those three or four inches might easily embrace at least one vulnerable spot. In a charge across the open Willard would be a target that even a blind gunner couldn't miss. All that would be necessary would be for aforesaid gunner to blaze away in the Kansan's general direction. If Willard could be encased in armor he would make a wonderful rampart for a company or a regiment to use on defence. But to ask him to offer that immense bulk known as his anatomy as a target would be asking more than any other citizen would have
